ARE STILL AVAILABLE

Our Special Issues:

FALL 1971—

The Rediscovery of Cultural Pluralism. A widely-acclaimed collection of essays, stories, poems and articles on aspects of ethnicity and regionalism. Including Earl Shorris' powerful and lyrical essay, "The King of Israel"; Andrew Greeley's newsmaking article on the rediscovery of cultural pluralism; Victor Navasky's improbable "Our Ethnic F.B.I."; Charles Newman's amazing essay on "The Writer as Rube"; James Aronson on Black Journalists; and much much more. Available, but not for long. $1.75.

FALL-WINTER, 1970-71—

Our absolutely elegant Double Issue, including 70 pages of poetry by Aiken, Bly, Creeley, Ginsberg, Goldfarb, Merwin, Tate, Ungaretti, Wilbur, and such like, with photographs by Elsa Dorfman; six pieces by Borges; stories by Joyce Carol Oates and Leslie Epstein; the revival of Monocle magazine and William Harmon's brilliant essay on American poetry. $2.50.

And In Between:

SUMMER 1971—

In which we published our best fiction ever: Charles Newman's powerful and beautiful novella, "There Must be More to Love than Death"; the first work by Daniel Ellsberg since the publication of the Pentagon Papers; and articles on the decline and fall of theater and playwrighting by Dan Isaac and Tankred Dorst. $1.75.

SPRING 1971—

Featuring C. W. Gusewelle's long, lyrical narrative, "Listening to the Middle East," and Starkey Flythe's prize-winning story, "Point of Conversion." Also Dr. Thomas Szasz on The Ethics of Suicide, John Halverson on The Psychopathology of Style, a collection of Gregory Orr's poems, and a Monocle feature On Selling Out. $1.75.

SPRING 1970—

Our 30th Anniversary Issue, featuring Lawrence Grauman Jr.'s controversial and celebrated editorial on the future of literary magazines; lots of poetry, by Diane Wakoski and many others; some disputable fiction, both quiet and loud; and some serious thinking by Kenneth Rexroth, David Spitz and Oscar Mandel (who thinks seriously about what's funny). $2.00.

WINTER 1969-70—

Featuring Bernard Kaplan's stunning story, "One of the Seas is Called Tranquility"; the first American publication of Ho Chi Minh's Last Will and Testament; Jean La Couture on Ho; Irving Louis Horowitz on the Student as Jew; Joyce Carol Oates on Yeats; Charles Rembar on Gossip; many fine poems; and the inauguration of James Aronson's regular column on the Press. $2.00.

Any or all of these issues may be ordered from: Circulation Department, The Antioch Review, Yellow Springs, Ohio 45387. Include 14¢ postage.
